Cotton Goods

Market Here Slow
Demand Still Slack
Stocks Depleted

IN spite of the improvement in the political situation and the better feeling in the yarn and cotton market of Shanghai, the piece goods section does not improve, and importers are still waiting for the expected upcountry demand to develop. It is difficult to explain the present lack of interest that is shown in cotton cloths. There is still no confidence in the present level of Manchester prices, while the inquiries have become so restricted that dealers are afraid to buy in large quantities.

In the ordinary way, one would have thought that the extremely poor stock of all piece goods in Shanghai and in the interior would have served as a powerful factor for increased business, but it is not so. Although there is something doing every week, the volume of trade that transpires week in and week out inspires little confidence or hope.

Buyers here are operating very cautiously, obsessed with the belief that prices in Lancashire must come down. On the other hand, the manufacturers in that country are not disposed to consider favorably the prices offered by Shanghai, which are below the parity ruling in the market at Manchester. The chances of a broadening of the volume of inquiry for cloth goods, which were quite appreciable a couple of months ago, are small at the moment. Unless prices on one side or the other are revised it is difficult to see how a big business can be brought within the bounds of possibility.

MONOTONOUS PROGRESS

As regards features of any importance the Shanghai piece goods market has been devoid of these, and the progress of things has been monotonous. There is nothing to create interest, the manufacturers and buyers both standing pat on their prices, resulting in business of only very small dimensions.

Previously the only thing, it was stated, that was keeping back a substantial trade in piece goods between China and Lancashire was the chaotic state of the interior of this country both politically and financially. Now that the political situation is certainly improved, compared to what it was some months ago, the turnover is still very small.

The Lancashire market is not very willing to accept the prices offered by Chinese merchants owing to the higher prices of cotton. Unfortunately when cotton was cheaper and Manchester was offering lower rates the local market was unable to take advantage of them owing to the fact that this was at a time when trade was very apathetic as a result of the very hot period. In July standard lines could be bought from Manchester at prices lower than was possible for about eighteen months. The Chinese dealers are regretting not having seized that opportunity, but at the same time appear to be under the impression that Manchester prices must come down to their level. How this will turn out to be correct it is difficult to say at the present moment, when values on the other side appear to be firm.

STOCK STILL LOW

It is probable that demand will broaden considerably as soon as buyers feel they are on solid ground. A moderate decline rather than a big one would help matters. Although at the present moment transactions are entered into on the Shanghai market every day they are seldom of important dimensions. This, of course, has the effect of keeping stocks still low. The majority of the offers that are going from China are 10 to 15 percent too low even when allowance is made for the fact that the Lancashire manufacturer has bought his yarn at a price which probably shows a loss.

The cessation of the boycott against Japanese goods is diverting demand to Japan which during the boycott was executed by Manchester. While the Lancashire mills, no doubt, have never encouraged this movement of hatred, recognising that the same instrument might be directed against them one day they cannot expect to get the business which in normal times goes to Japan. Japanese prices are 15 to 20 percent cheaper than English goods, and it will be seen why the Chinese buyers prefer to do a little of their buying in the Land of the Cherry Blossoms.

Since the serious disaster to Japanese trade caused by the great earthquake prices of Japanese piece goods have appreciated some four to five mace per piece. The turnover in this line would have been greater but for this appreciation in Japanese values. Chinese dealers, in this direction, as well, are demanding lower quotations, which the manufacturers in Japan are not willing to concede, with the result that business for the moment is limited.

As an instance of the depleted

TSAO KUN TO ENTER PEKING TODAY UNDER HEAVY GUARD

Inaugural Rites Are Officially Set For Wednesday

ADDRESS IS READY

Elaborate Precautions Taken For Safety Of President

(Special To The China Press)

Peking, October 8.—A telephone message from Paotingfu states that Tsao Kun will enter Peking tomorrow and assume the presidency on October 10 at noon. His inaugural address will dwell on five points: 1. Reunification of the nation, 2. No foreign loans except for constructive purposes, 3. Disarmament, 4. Encouragement of vocational education and 5. encouragement of industrial enterprises. The author of the address is Wang Yu-chi, director-general of the Tobacco and Wine Bureau.

At the conference held yesterday at Kwanyuan, Paoting, on the question of the Cabinet, Tsao favored the organisation of a cabinet by Dr. W. W. Yen, while the Tientsin clique supported Wang Cheng-ping, Governor of Chihli who did most in the recent election. The speaker of the House, Wu Ching-lien however, seeks the position himself and is opposed to the appointment of Yen.

Hundreds of officials, Parliamentarians and newspapermen are pouring into Paoting daily, mostly to express their congratulations to the new president.

Every precaution is being taken for the safety of Tsao when he arrives. A military cordon will be established between the West Station and the Hsin Hua Palace.

It is arranged that the Diplomatic Corps will be received by Tsao shortly after his assumption of office when Mr. Yoshihara, the Japanese envoy, will present his credential officially for the first time.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 7.—It is now expected that Marshal Tsao Kun will come to Peking on October 9 and be installed as President on October 10.

The Cabinet has prepared a note of resignation en bloc, which it will tender to the President on his assumption of office.

A number of Members of Parliament left Peking for Paotingfu today to urge Marshal Tsao to appoint Mr. Wu Ching-lien, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, permanent Prime Minister.

It is semi-officially stated that the new President will issue a circular telegram outlining his policy as follows: (1) To work for practical unification; (2) to readjust finance by internal measures, not depending on foreign loans; (3) to develop plan for universal education; (4) to disband troops, beginning with Chihli; (5) to developed industry and reduce minor taxes.

The Drafting Conference passed the second reading of the Constitution yesterday. It is believed that the third reading will be passed in time for proclaiming the whole Constitution on October 10.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 6.—Amongst other Chihli leaders who left Peking today was General Hsiung Ping-chi who left for Tientsin. He has played a very prominent part behind the scenes in the election.

Kearny's Second Trial On Arms Import Charge Begins In U. S. Court

Startling Testimony Given At Yesterday's Session By Roth And Mayer—The Steins Testify Today

Sensational charges featured the second trial in which Captain L. D. Kearny is charged with importing arms and munitions of war into China during the first day's session before Judge Charles S. Lobingier in the United States Court for China yesterday.

The case occupied the court calendar all morning and was resumed in the afternoon immediately after the usual Monday motions, continuing until 7 o'clock last night. At that hour only Louis F. Roth and George A. Mayer had testified and been cross-examined and Carroll V. Stein and Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, the other two witnesses for the prosecution are expected to take the stand when the case is resumed at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Roth spent the entire morning on the stand being examined by U. S. District Attorney Leonard G. Husar and cross-examined by Mr. C. S. Franklin counsel for Captain Kearny, and Mr. Mayer's testimony took the afternoon session. Special Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Stirling Fessenden assisted Mr. Husar and Mr. Paul F. Faison assisted Mr. Franklin.

MANY EXHIBITS

When the case was adjourned last night Mr. Husar had introduced a score of telegrams alleged to have passed between Kearny, Mayer, Roth and others alleged to have been involved in the arms transaction as well as several letters and a chart, as government exhibits. Many more remain to be introduced today by both prosecution and defense.

Before the taking of evidence began, Mr. Husar asked that Judge Lobingier fix a definite time limit within which the defense in the first Kearny case could take the deposition of Admiral Tu, Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese Navy, whose letter explaining Kearny's connection with the Chinese Navy was not admitted during the trial. Mr. Husar contended that it was unprecedented that a criminal case should be left open indefinitely.

Mr. Franklin opposed setting a definite time limit but said he was perfectly willing to go to either Peking, if the Admiral remained there, or to Nanking at the earliest opportunity to take the deposition.

Mr. Franklin also filed a demurrer in the case setting forth the same objections as the demurrer in the first case with one additional statement, that the information did not state that the alleged crime was against the United States. In supporting the demurrer he asked the Court to take official recognizance of the fact that Chang Tsai-wang was the Chili Governor of Chekiang and began an explanation in which he mentioned that the Court was a branch of the State Department.

Judge Lobingier interrupted to say that the Court was not a branch of the State Department, being merely under that governmental branch through custom. Mr. Franklin contended that under the treaty of 1903 Americans can sell arms and munitions to duly authorised Chinese officials and asserted that that was what his client had done. Judge Lobingier remarked that that was a question of defense, not demurrer and over ruled the demurrer on the same grounds he over ruled the demurrer in the first case.

THE CHARGE

Mr. Husar, in presenting the case for the prosecution, explained that Captain Kearny was charged with conspiring with George A. Mayer, Louis F. Roth, Carroll V. Stein, Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, John W. Maloney, Ivanoff Rinoff, John R. C. Willemsen and Admiral V. Besoir in purchasing machine guns, bayonets, rifles, cartridges, pistols, revolvers and artillery pieces during April and March from four or five Russian ships then anchored at Gensan, Korea. The arms belonged to the "White" forces, he said, under the control of Admiral Besoir and General Liebedoff, who commanded the troops aboard the refugee vessels.

Captain Kearny, he continued, had sent certain agents to Korea to investigate conditions and, acting through Ivanoff Rinoff, Admiral Besoir's agent, had conceived a scheme for the purchase of the munitions and their shipment to China. The plans had been sent to Keijo (Seoul) in a Russian code, translated and deciphered, and called for the arms to be transferred from four of the ships to the Ohotsk outside Korea's three mile limit at sea. A chart had been prepared, he

2,000 NANKING TROOPS MOVED TO CHANGCHOW

Tension Here Tightens With Sudden Activities In North

The sudden appearance of more than 2,000 troops at Changchow on the Shanghai-Nanking Railway and rumors of the movement of troops of Lu Ching, aide-de-camp of Tsao Kun, to this province brought added tension in the local political situation yesterday despite the signing of the Chekiang-Anhui peace treaty at Hangchow on Sunday. This pact, coupled with the Kiangsu-Chekiang treaty signed a month ago was expected to insure local tranquility in case of any warfare caused by Tsao Kun's election to the presidency. But the warlike gestures made by the Chihlities will probably reduce these commitments of the military authorities in Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhui and the Special District of Woosung and Shanghai, into scraps of paper.

The 2,000 soldiers were transferred to Chinkiang on Sunday, from Nanking by order of Chi Shih-yuan. They were equipped with several machine guns and field artillery. Later they were moved down to Changchow.

The local Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, as a result, will call an extraordinary meeting of its directors shortly to discuss the situation. The meeting will probably be held on Saturday.

Parliamentarians in Shanghai again met at the Hupeh Guild yesterday. A number of them went to Hangchow to consult the military authorities there on the question of observing the terms of the treaty between Kiangsu and Chekiang.

Another mass meeting to protest against the election of Tsao Kun as president and the prolongation of the term of the present Parliament will be held at the Nantao Barracks on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Twenty-one local Chinese bodies have already signed up to participate.

TRAMWAYS HERE FACING THIRTY-THREE MORE CASES

Police Bring Batch Of Overcrowding Charges

ADJOURN SESSION

Await Hearing Of Appeal On Previous Ruling

The Shanghai Electric Constructions Company, which lost a similar case in the British Police Court recently, have been made defendants in thirty-three more "overcrowding" cases brought by the Municipal police.

The charges are that the company in the instances enumerated carried a greater number of passengers than the Municipal regulations authorise and that the number of passengers authorised was not conspicuously painted upon the cars in English and Chinese. In the previous case the company was fined $10 on each of these counts by Magistrate G. W. King. The company gave notice of appeal and in consideration of this fact it was deemed best at yesterday's hearing to adjourn the cases pending until the Full Court has ruled on the appeal.

Sixteen of the thirty-three cases were brought before the Court yesterday, while the other seventeen were to have come on today. Mr. King was on the bench and the police were represented by Mr. Eardley Maitland and Mr. R. N. Macleod appeared for the Tramways company.

Mr. Maitland in addressing the magistrate, said he proposed calling one or two cases and would then ask the Court to deal with the whole lot at the end.

REMINDS OF APPEAL

Magistrate King reminded counsel that an appeal was pending on a decision as to similar charges and asked Mr. Maitland if he wished the Court to give a decision while such appeal pended. Mr. Maitland said he appreciated the position and if an adjournment was preferred he had no objection.

"It is not if the Court prefers an adjournment," said the Magistrate. "The position is this: three weeks ago I gave a decision on charges of an identical nature to these 33. My decision in that case has been appealed from by the defendant company and that appeal has not been decided by the Full Court."

Mr. Macleod stated that so far as the defendants were concerned he was willing to have an adjournment pending the ruling on the appeal.

"If I went on with these 33 charges," said the Magistrate, "it is obvious that I am not going to differ from my previous decision. It would be extraordinary if I did. I should have to fine the company in 33 cases. Subsequently that Full Court might reverse my original decision and then the company would have to appeal in these cases."

AGREE ON ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Macleod agreed that it would be better to have an adjournment. The Magistrate said it might be necessary to take some evidence in each case to prove a breach of the regulations and Mr. Maitland suggested that in the event of the decision being reversed in the previous case it would be a waste of time to go on with the present batch.

Mr. King said the appeal would go in the ordinary way during December but if either party wanted it sooner the Full Court would hear it earlier. Mr. Maitland replied that Messrs. Hansons were applying to have it heard at an earlier date and if they were going to have an adjournment he would prefer not to call any evidence at this time. Mr. Macleod, in answer to the Court, said he thought the appeal should be heard first. He understood the parties had been informed that either could set down the appeal for the first date convenient to the judges and as a matter of fact Mr. McNeill had written him a letter asking him to agree to have it set down. He replied that he had no objection and also mentioned that he had suggested that the parties should meet to discuss matters from the practical point of view. He sug-

Dr. Stresemann, after making a strong protest at the emissary's request, made a full statement for M. Poincare of the German position and expressed the hope that M. Poincare would not make the situation in Germany more difficult by speeches.

LADIES HELD BY BANDITS GET OUT WORD ON SITUATION

Chief Ready To Make Terms; Offers Money

CAPTIVES SAFE

Letters Brought To Mission At Chenchowfu

Letters from Miss M. Darroch and Miss R. Sharp, of the China Inland Mission, who were captured by bandits at Sihwahsien, Honan, on September 23, have been received at Chenchowfu and report that the captives are in good health and that their captors are anxious to come to terms—even offering the ladies cash remuneration. The bandit chief Fan Yu-lin, declares that his activities are for the purpose of "settling China's wrongs," due to the present rulers.

This latest word has been received by the China Inland Mission offices here in two letters from Chenchowfu. The letters also report a rush of refugees from the country to the walled cities, particularly Chenchowfu, the district having been terrorised by the bandit depredations.

The latest letter, dated October 2, reads as follows:

It is a pleasure to tell you that today at noon Mr. Wang Yong-siang, a christian from Sihwa who went into the brigand camp with the Sihwa Deputies, and remained with the ladies; arrived here with letters from Misses Darroch and Sharp.

"The ladies report themselves well and cheerful; also very thankful for the prayer of all the friends everywhere and ask for a continuance of the same. They relate that the brigands used Mr. Wang to go out and try to make a truce with the soldiers who were attacking continually. This was difficult as the soldiers seized him for a spy, and detained him, saying that any one can write English these days! This was referring to a note the ladies wrote, and finally after more than one trip they believed, him, and seemed to have stopped firing.

SETTLING CHINA'S WRONGS

"Mr. Wang brought a further letter from the brigand Chief, Fan Yu-lin, addressed to Mr. Bevis of the China Inland Mission, Chenchowfu, stating his objects in his present course which are, in the main, to properly settle the wrongs of China which the present rulers are not doing, and that he is treating the captive ladies well and will send them back to their home countries in peace when negotiations are fixed with the Government with satisfaction. He is also pressing the ladies to take remuneration for their losses in cash, on the spot. A magnanimous Chief indeed! Mr. Wang returned to the brigand camp taking further letters and provisions to the ladies.

"Refugees from the surrounding country are pouring into the city: the women and their bundles are being hauled over the walls with ropes; men are not allowed in."

TELLS OF MOVEMENTS

The other letter, dated October 1, follows:

"Two men returned on Saturday after following on the track of the brigands for five days. They reached Lutai, 70 li from Chenchow, and found that the robbers had gone off toward the Anhwei border. On Monday night the local Magistrate announced a further change in the situation: the brigands down East have been turned back and have come North West as far as Fengtai where they are evidently getting hemmed in by the Military. A further happy development is that the Sihwa Magistrate's two deputies have succeeded in getting into the brigand camp and had an interview with Fan, the Chief. He sent a letter by the two deputies to the Chenchow Magistrate and Missionary Nading, that they want to come terms, and are anxious to have the brigands called off. The Chief has given assurance that the captive ladies are being well treated. The deputies said that they could not converse with the ladies but declared they are alright."

AMAKASU TRIAL ATTRACTS HUGE CROWD IN TOKIO

Great Interest Displayed In Inquiry Into Triple Slaying

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Oct. 8.—Amid the stress and turmoil of the last six weeks no incident has created as much sensation which was considerably enhanced by the ban of secrecy hitherto imposed—as the act of Captain Amakasu in killing the Socialist, Osugi Sakaye, and his wife and nephew. The trial by public court-martial opened this morning.

Interest is so great that the court is strongly guarded, while counsel are specially attended by gendarmes and plain clothes police.

According to the preliminary report of the military judge, which was published this morning, Osugi, his wife and his seven-year old nephew were arrested on the night of September 16. While they were under examination by a sergeant of gendarmerie, Captain Amakasu attacked each in turn, and strangled them with a "judo hold." Afterwards the bodies were stripped and thrown down a disused well, and the clothes were burned.

Inquiries by friends of the victims, especially of the child, as to their whereabouts led to the discovery of the crime. Captain Amakasu's defence is that he was prompted by fears for the State if extremists of Osugi's type were allowed to live. He stated that he killed the child in the belief that he was Osugi's son.

DR. YEN TO BE MADE PREMIER, IS PREDICTION

Several Other Names Also Being Mentioned At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 6.—It is predicted in some circles that Dr. W. W. Yen will be appointed Premier, but there is opposition to him in some parliamentary circles and it is uncertain if this can be overcome. Several other names for the Premiership have also been mentioned.

It is reported that the Anfuites, Mr. Li Shih-hao and Dr. Yao Chen, were in Peking yesterday trying hard up to the last minute to persuade Members of Parliament not to vote for Marshal Tsao Kun. Following upon their failure to prevent the election, they secretly left Peking last night.

Tramways Face 33 More Cases

gested a meeting, but the only reply had been the issue of these 33 summonses.

"I am not in a position of adviser," said the Magistrate, "but I might comment that it would be advisable to go on with the appeal. There have been 33 summonses issued and there may be 33 more next week. I am quite prepared to go on taking evidence until Christmas if you want it."

WROTE TO COUNCIL

Mr. Macleod agreed that it would be a waste of time and went on to say that the company's position was that they had been in communication with the Council. They had not got very far and thought the quicker way would be by a meeting of two or three representatives of each party. He had received no reply to this suggestion and this was the only reason that he had not yet got down the appeal.

Regarding the present charges, Mr. Macleod said that they seemed too incomplete in a very material respect in that they did not specify times and places and it was therefore impossible for the company to prepare an answer to them. In respect of the first summons, it dealt with tram 100 and trailer 155, alleging that the numbers were not painted thereon. In this instance the specification of time or place was not required, but in cases were overcrowding was alleged he wanted these facts.

The Court agreed with this contention and Mr. Maitland said that such information could be given. Mr. Macleod commented that if the evidence was going to be that an excess of one passenger was carried in one compartment it would be a breach, he supposed, but a breach that the company might well admit, and in such an instance he could address the Court on the question that it was not worth fighting about.

At the conclusion of the hearing it was decided that the cases, as well as the 17 set down for hearing today should be adjourned sine die.

The summonses issued were: from Central district, 4; Louza, 4; Hongkew, 7; Yangtszepoo, 1; West Hongkew, 6; Sinza, 4; Wayside, 5; North Szechuen Road 2.

Won't Desert Farm For Washington

Mrs. Magnus Johnson

MRS. Magnus Johnson, wife of the Farmer-Labor leader who has just been elected to the United States Senate from Minnesota, declares she will not desert the farm to accompany her picturesque husband to Washington. The Senator's wife, who has farmed all her life, declares she milks seven cows before breakfast every morning and that she personally cares for the little truck garden that supplies the food for the entire Johnson family.

Tsao Kun Will Go To Capital Today

of the election the political and financial situation will be easier in Peking at least for the next few days, but there is a good deal of speculation as to what will happen elsewhere. Many Chinese are predicting that there will be a civil war within a week. They are anxiously watching to see what will be the next steps of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, General Lu Yung-ting and others. Many Chinese attach great significance to the fact that Marshal Chang Tso-lin is holding manoeuvres just now.

Another important matter which has to be decided is the question of who shall succeed Marshal Tsao Kun as Inspector-General of Chihli, Honan and Shantung. It was pointed out months ago that this problem would arise as soon as Marshal Tsao Kun became President. It is stated that both General Wu Pei-fu and General Feng Yu-hsiang are eager to obtain this post, and opponents of the Chihli Party hope that this will lead to friction between them immediately.

It is reported that, in order to do away with enmity between these two generals, Marshal Tsao may abolish the post and appoint General Feng Yu-hsiang Tuchun of Chihli and General Wang Chen-ping Tuchun of Shantung. This would incidentally lead to the removal of General Tien Chung-yu from his present post.

said, and after certain signals had been given the Russian ship was to meet the Yungping, Kearny's vessel, and transfer the arms.

Mr. Franklin interrupted at that point to ask for the exclusion of all witnesses. Carroll V. Stein, Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, Louis F. Roth and George A. Mayer were called by the prosecution, sworn in as government witnesses, and excluded from the courtroom, after which Mr. Husar continued.

Other correspondence which had passed between the various agents, Mr. Husar said, included a list of the arms, remarks about the price to be paid, etc.

In addition, he continued, there was an alternative plan which was to be used in case things did not go as smoothly as expected, with a reservation by the Russians, unknown to Kearny, that the details of the entire affair would be turned over to the Japanese authorities if Kearny attempted to get away with the arms without paying for them. The Russians also had the reservation that Kearny was to make provision for the refugees and, Mr. Husar said, in that connection Kearny had made promises that he knew he couldn't keep and had no intention of keeping, including promises that they would be given work in road building in Chekiang.

The substitute plan was ultimately used, he said, the steamer Eldorado chartered and brought to China carrying between 1,000 and 1,400 rifles and 200,000 rounds of ammunition. Several hundred refugees were also brought to China and were in Chekiang until last Friday when the vessel suddenly sailed away.

ROTH TESTIFIES

Louis F. Roth then took the witness stand and testified and was cross-examined by Mr. Franklin until court adjourned until 1 o'clock.

Mr. Roth said that he first went to work for The Kearny Company on January 15 as salesman in the millinery, canned goods and potatoes department, and continued working for them until June 15, when he was fired by Captain Kearny. The first time he discussed the purchase of any arms, he said, was when Captain Kearny spoke to him of the possible purchase of some guns in the latter part of February. He had several conversations after that and was finally given instructions to go to Korea and see what could be purchased from the Russians there. Captain Kearny, he said, had telephoned to his mother that he was going to Korea on an important mission and would make plenty of money.

Before he left, he said, George A. Mayer, also an employee, had a disagreement with Kearny and went to the law offices of Williams, Franklin and Faison in the Glen Line building with the intention of closing up the company.

FRANKLIN NAMED

"In my presence, "Roth said," Mayer told Judge Franklin that he wanted to close up the company, because Kearny owned him $2,000. "Don't do that, 'Judge Franklin said,' or none of us will make any money. It will spoil the big deal.'"

On March 26, Roth continued, he had a conference with Kearny and Roth in Kearny's offices concerning the route he would take to reach Gensan, and made his final arrangements at another conference between the three on March 31.

"Before I sailed on the Sakaki Maru," Roth testified, "Kearny invited me to a tiffin party in honor of Mrs. Kearny's birthday. It was supposed to be on Sunday but as they were living in a Seventh Day Adventist house they had to hold it on Saturday. A big crowd was present and we drank toasts to our future wealth. Later I was taken to the offices for my final instructions and handed a piece of paper on which was written 'V. Besoir, Gensan.' I asked how I was to locate the man and Franklin said that should be easy for me since I spoke Russian, Japanese and Chinese."

GAS BOMBS!

"During the conference we talked about the Woosung deal," he continued," and they discussed putting an advertisement in The China Press for a Russian chemist to make gas bombs so that they could get airplanes and fly over Shanghai, drop the bombs and take the city for Governor Chang.

"The next day Kearny suggested that we use Bentley's code, but Franklin said that was public and said 'We're dealing in food stuffs, you know.' So it was suggested we use the Paul Jones code. Under that 1,600 cwt. potatoes would mean 1,600 rifles, and 60 cases of milk would mean sixty machine guns. I was told to get into touch with Admiral Besoir, find out what munitions he had, and report.

"Captain Kearny told me to promise them anything—'They're poor and so give them only a little money but tell 'em we'll put 'em all to work,' he said. 'Pretend you're selling milk, paint and drygoods.

"I asked whether it was legal to by the arms and he pulled a paper out of his pocket that was supposed to make him Admiral in the Chekiang Navy. Consequently I sailed on Tuesday for Tsingtau but found that the railroad to Gensan was washed out, so I took train for Tsinanfu and returned to Shanghai. Mayer met me and took me to Kearny's house where they threatened to fire me for not going through with the deal. The next day—about April 9—they decided to send Mayer to Korea and gave him the same instructions they had given me.

NEW GOVERNMENT

"At that time they were boasting about the deal and Kearny, after explaining that Governor Chang was to be made President and Commissioner Hsia, Vice-President, said 'Judge, you'll be the chief advisor to Chang. Roth, you'll get $5,000. Mayer, you'll get $5,000. Judge, you'll get a lakh of gold. What I make is none of your business."

"Mayer left for Korea that night on the Nagasaki Maru, and the next day Kearny went to Hangchow and came back on his yacht, the Yungping, with two Chinese officers. He went again to Hangchow and returned in a hurry when I wired him that Mayer had reported everything was ready at Gensan. On April 21 he returned by train and was met by Franklin, Mrs. Kearny, Mrs. Roth and myself. Kearny told Franklin that everything was alright. 'We've got tons of money, we're rolling in money, Judge,' he said.

"The next day a man came from Hangchow with $15,000 in a suitcase and I went with Kearny when he deposited it in the name of Mrs. Kearny. They had decided to send me to Gensan with final instructions to Mayer and so showed me a chart on which Kearny marked a ring to show where the Russian vessel was to meet the Yungping near the Saddles."

Mr. Husar for the prosecution then put in the chart and written copy of Roth's instructions as government exhibits.

MORE JOBS

"Captain Kearny was feeling good," Roth continued and promised to make me General Manager of the waterworks at Hangchow.' 'And I'll make Mayer general manager of the ice plant at a nice salary,' he said. 'The Judge is going to have offices in the Governor's yamen.'

"The day before I left Admiral Besoir came with a letter of introduction from Mayer. The Admiral told Kearny they had arms on board but he didn't know the quantity. The question of the purchase of the arms was discussed again at a tiffin party that day and at a dinner party that night at Sincere's. I left on the Nagasaki Maru and met Meyer in Keijo (Seoul). He introduced me to Willemsen, who was Chief Engineer for the ships. I carried a check for $5,000 to give to Mayer for the deal but I couldn't cash it as the bank there didn't know the Union Bank of China on which it was drawn. I telegraphed Franklin, Kearny and the bank that I couldn't cash the check."

The telegram referred to was put in as a government exhibit by Mr. Husar.

JOINS 'Y'

I returned to Shanghai with the information that if there was no money forthcoming there would be no deal and was to see Governor Chang in Hangchow to get more money. Secretary Ma of the 'Y' there was the go-between between Kearny and the Governor. Kearny already belonged to the 'Y' there and I joined. When I went to Commissioner Hsia's yamen there were two German mausers lying on a table and the Commissioner asked me if the guns on the ships were like that. I told him they were longer ones.

"Governor Chang, when I saw him, was adverse to putting up any more money. I've already advanced $30,000 to Kearny and have nothing to show for it,' he said. "We're anxious to get the guns. We're not worrying about the ships. Mr. Hu then told the Governor that Franklin was going to Korea to close the deal and had to have $5,000 more. The Governor exclaimed, 'More money!' Hei yah!"

"Then I had a conversation with Secretary Ma and he told me that Kearny was a crook and they wouldn't advance any more money. I returned to Shanghai and was met by Mr. Gow, who was to be a General in command of drill instruction for the Hangchow police under the new regime. Kearny said, 'You don't know how to get money out of them suckers. I'm the one to get money from the Chinese.'

MORE MONEY

"Then I made a second trip to Hangchow and managed to raise the $5,000 needed. Kearny put it in a Chinese bank. He had accounts all over town. In a conversation I had with him he said he 'thought that guy Mayer was trying to double-cross him. Judge Franklin's the only man I trust,' he said. 'He's a Southerner and so am I and he'll stick to me. Franklin sailed for Korea then met Mayer in Nagasaki and so returned to Shanghai. When Mayer arrived he said he was through with Kearny because, he said, he was a crook. Franklin said he was going back himself and close the deal."

After that Roth said he went once to Mr. Paul Grosse at the American Consulate and got the charter parties for Franklin, and had purchased two tickets for Franklin and Willemsen to go to Korea. Then Kearny went and he discovered he had been fired so he reported the entire matter to U.S. District Attorney Husar, the Senior Consul, and the police.

CROSS EXAMINATION

In cross-examination Mr. Franklin asked where the paper which supposedly contained Admiral Besoir's name was at the present time.

"It was stolen by your people when my office was ransacked," Roth replied.

"You said that at this party toasts were drunk 'to our future wealth'. What beverage was used?"

"There were a lot of missionaries there and some drank tea and some drank water."

"Why was Shanghai to be bombed with these gas bombs you speak of? Was it to be an anti-foreign movement?"

"I suppose so."

"And what about the Paul Jones code?"

"It was also stolen from my desk".

At this point Mr. Husar was forced to warn Mr. Roth about continually replying to Mr. Franklin—"You were there, you know", and like phrases.

Mr. Franklin then asked if it were not a fact that Roth went to Korea to check up on Mayer and see what was becoming of the money he was sent to charter ships with.

"You reported to Hangchow that Kearny was a crook and then tried to sell them arms yourself?"

"No. I told Ma that Kearny was not to be trusted.

In further questions Mr. Franklin brought out the fact that Roth had written a letter to Mayer containing such phrases as "Reserve a thousand for me," "don't talk too much to the Judge," etc.

Roth retorted that he had warned Mayer against Mr. Franklin because he had opened his mail and telegrams. He also denied that he had cried in Mr. Franklin's office when confronted with the letter and pleaded that it not be made public.

"I'm not a child. I'm an adult", he declared.

Before leaving the witness stand Roth asserted that during the Baker trial in the U.S. Court Mr. Franklin had taken him into Commissioner Lurton's room across the hall from the Court and threatened him 'if he spilled the beans'. Mr. Franklin denied the allegation as assinine.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At the afternoon session George A. Mayer was the only witness heard. He testified that he had been employed by Kearny from early in December, 1922, until May 9. The first conversation he had with Kearny concerning arms, he said, was in the middle of February when Kearny told him of a deal with Nanking that had fallen through. A little later, he continued a Chinese named Wong had come to the office with Mr. Franklin and had wanted to buy arms.

Mr. Franklin objected on the ground that Wong's name did not appear in the information and was sustained.

The next time, Mayer continued, was when a man named Ma from the Hangchow Y.M.C.A. came to the offices and Kearny had a conversation with him concerning the Russian arms. He was not on good term with Kearny at that time, he said, because Kearny had held out $2,000 on him in the deal in December and so when it came time to send a man to Korea he sent Roth instead of him.

"Roth can sell hats but he can't buy guns," Kearny said to him, he testified, after Roth had returned to Shanghai. "You did good work in the other deal so you go to Korea and buy this stuff."

Mayer then corroborated the evidence given by Roth during the morning concerning conversations on arms and munitions at which both were present. The only new evidence he gave referring to Mr. Franklin was the statement that Mr. Franklin had once told him to keep his mouth shut and he'd get his money.

THE NEGOTIATIONS

Mayer then gave detailed information concerning his trip to Korea for Kearny and conversations and negotiations be conducted with various Russians for the purchase of the arms. He met Admiral Besoir and Willemsen, he said, and finally began active negotiations through Ivanoff Efroff. During all this time, he testified, he had been reporting to Kearny by telegram and letter, and had received replies. Mr. Husar submitted a number of such telegrams and letters as government exhibits.

During this period, he said, Kearny had promised him money continually but none was forthcoming and he couldn't explain to the Russians—who wanted money—and so he finally became disgusted with the thing and wired in his resignation. The resignation was wired, and written, after Roth had gone to Korea and returned to Shanghai without any beneficial results.

At Nagasaki on his way back, he said, he met Mr. Franklin who tried to get him to return on the plea that if they didn't go to Korea the entire deal would fall through. He severed his connections with the Kearny company on May 9.

In cross-examination Mayer said he had been promised a job at Hangchow at $500 a month but didn't know exactly what he was to do. They were going to build an ice plant, 100 miles of roads, some bridges and a hotel in Chekiang, Captain Kearny had told him, and he was to manage one of them.

"He never mentioned a gasworks did he?," Mr. Franklin inquired without the flicker of a smile.

"How much did you receive during the time you were in Korea?"

"$5,600."

"Did you ever render an account to Captain Kearny for the money."

"No. But you wrote me a letter demanding an accounting for $8,500."

The case was then continued until this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

CHILLS THAT WEAKEN THE LUNGS.

Sudden Dangers Lurking In The Weather

Just as the mighty Yangtsze River is but a tiny rill at its source, so it is with most diseases of the throat, chest and lungs. In their earlier stages, they, too, seem small and insignificant. That is why you should always remember to slip a Peps tablet into your mouth whenever you feel chilly, or a throat soreness and sneezing attack warns of a cold.

It is impossible to over-emphasize the dangers of negiecting colds and chills. Neglected colds lay the foundations of weakly constitutions in childhood. Even an ordinary cold in the head can develop into chronic catarrh, deafness, constant running at the nose, etc. Cold on the chest paves the way for bronchitis, asthma or other chronic chest weakness, even if lung congestion, pleurisy or pneumonia does not supervene, whilst a sequence of colds leave the lungs in such a weakened state that they provide fertile soil for the seeds of the dreaded consumption.

The Peps treatment provides the handy and most effective means of dealing with all coughs, colds and chest trouble, for it enables a most powerful and natural curative agency to be introduced direct into the chest and lungs. The powerful medicinal fumes given off by the Peps tablets carry comfort and healing to all vital inner parts of the breathing system. They swiftly banish colds, chills, influenza, sore throat, etc. by dislodging and destroying the germs which cause them.

Obtain a bottle of Peps from your regular medicine dealer today or from Agents: Messrs Wakefield & Co., (China) Ltd., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai. Carry them about with you wherever you go. Take them freely as a protection against the many dangerous chest and lung affections inherent to climate.

FORMAL OPENING OF NEW NAVY "Y" IS TOMORROW

Admiral Anderson, Consul-General Cunningham And Others To Speak

The formal opening of the new Navy Y.M.C.A. at the corner of Hongkong and Szechuen Roads, takes place tomorrow morning.

The program will begin with a flag-raising ceremony at 10.15 a.m. in which more than 200 men of the United States Navy will participate, the flagship Huron's band assisting. At 10.30 the Committee of management of the Navy Y.M.C.A. will hold a reception in the lobby of the building, during which the orchestra of the Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Asiatic Fleet will play.

The dedication exercises will take place in the hall at 11 o'clock and short addresses will be given by Admiral Anderson, United States Consul-General Cunningham, Mr. J. Harold Dollar and Dr. Fong F. Sec.

From 12 until 1 o'clock the building will be open to inspection by the visitors, who will be conducted over the premises by navy men.

That the new building is appreciated to the full by navy men in Shanghai is eloquently attested to by the following statistics for the first seven days of this month: attendance at building, computed daily, 15,580; men sleeping in building, 1,560; number of letters written in building, 1,036; number of men using swimming pool, 954; number of meals served, 6,800; number of library books used, 922.

Lloyd George Is Guest Of Montreal

(Exclusive China Press)

Montreal, Oct. 7.—David Lloyd George, former premier of Great Britain arrived here today on a special train from New York. He was given a tumultuous greeting by the great crowd which had assembled at the railway station. The former premier will spend two days here in the course of his speaking tour of Canada and the United States.

stocks of cotton goods in Shanghai at present, a few statistics will serve to show the pressing need of supplies, which will have to be replenished as soon as conditions become more stable in the country. In grey shirtings the stocks on September 12 stood at 233,846 pieces while last year at the same time (not a particularly good year for comparison with business very limited) the stocks of grey shirtings stood at 403,508 pieces. In jeans our stocks total today some 45,475 pieces against 106,168 pieces last year this time, and in white shirtings and sheetings supplies are about 326,689 pieces against 1,031,598 pieces. The falling off is all along the line. Before the war a stock of a million pieces of grey and two million pieces of white shirtings was considered a moderate holding.

Even after the war the average holding was at this level, so that it would be seen how serious the depletions are in those respects. There is room for a big trade, but when and how it is going to come about nobody can say. So much depends upon the factors already touched upon.

French Offer Is Refused By Berlin

General Degoutte has received representatives of the workers' unions of Duesseldorf and told them of his desire to introduce the 10-hour day in the occupied territory.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, October 6.—In a speech in the Reichstag today Dr Stresmann, the Chancellor, defending the abandonment of passive resistance, said that the situation with which the Government was confronted when it assumed office was that passive resistance was no longer at its strongest, and that the French and Belgians would not be brought out of the occupied region by resistance alone. The weaker resistance got, the more difficult it became to utilise it diplomatically for Germany. The Government's effort had been to find a formula making possible the use of the abandonment of passive resistance for political negotiations, but the task could not be effected and failure was suffered in that connection. If the Government thought that by continuing passive resistance, it could have achieved something valuable for German freedom, it would have continued, but the country was in such a state of financial chaos that the day was near on which the German mark would cease to be a means of payment, not only abroad but also internally. In the circumstances giving up the fight was nothing of which a man need be ashamed.

Referring to Marquess Curzon's remarks, Dr. Stresemann said that every German attempt to play off one Ally against another would be political stupidity. The sole possibility of a solution of the reparations problem lay in agreement between the Allies on one side and Germany on the other. The French Government could illustrate its goodwill by entering into negotiations now that passive resistance had been abandoned.

The Communists greeted Dr. Stresemann as "Stinnes's puppet," whereuon the Chancellor assured them that Herr Stinnes was in no way concerned with the formation of the Government. He proceeded to state that the latter would ask the Reichstag to relinquish Constitutional rights for some time and give the Cabinet unprecedented powers. He deprecated as bad statesmanship the idea of playing off the Reich against Bavaria in connection with the latter's emergency decree. At the same time, Dr. Stresemann asserted that the Reich's decree took precedence.

There are only two fresh names in the new Cabinet. The other Ministers occupy the same posts as in the previous Cabinet, except Herr Luther, the Minister of Finance.

A French decree commutes the death sentences passed on the seven Germans convicted by court martial of sabotage on June 29 to penal servitude for life.

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The plan for the establishment of a directory Government has collapsed in the face of opposition from various political parties, notably the Democrats.

A conference of the parties yesterday evening reached an agreement on the thorny question of the eight-hour day on the basis of the Wirth Cabinet's formula in 1922, which provided that exceptions to the eight-hour day could be made for the purpose of increasing production in certain specified occupations.

Dr. Stresemann today announced the names of the twelve members of the Cabinet, including himself as Minister for Foreign Affairs and Herr Luther as Minister of Finance the latter replacing the Socialist, Herr Hilferding, the demand for whose resignation by Dr. Stresemann's party was one of the causes of the Government's fall. The new Cabinet is a coalition of Socialists, Democrats, Centrists and the German People's Party.

(Reuter's Service)

Munich, Oct. 6.—A decree prohibits the publication of Communist newspapers and literature in Bavaria under very severe penalties.

Dr. Von Kahr, addressign correspondents, asserted that Bavaria was not pursuing a separatist policy. Bavaria and the Reich were Siamese twins, and he was too good a monarchist to commit the folly of proclaiming a monarchy.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 6.—It is reported from Duesseldorf that General Degoutte today conferred with Herr Stinnes and three mining magnates with regard to conditions for the resumption of work in the Ruhr and provision for the resumption of reparations deliveries.

Before conferring with General Degoutte, Herr Stinnes had a conversation with Herr Krupp in prison. The decision to approach the occupation authorities was taken at a meeting of Industrialists on September 30, and was subsequently approved by Dr. Stresemann.

H. H. READ IS CLAY PIGEON "CHAMP" FOR 6TH TIME

Popular Sportsman Annexes Trophy In Sunday Shoot

GOOD WEATHER

H. E. Gibson Is Second; Judge Grain Presents Cup

BY DOMINO

Mr. H. H. Read is once again the champion clay pigeon shooter in Shanghai.

Sunday was a perfectly delightful day in almost every respect. All the clay pigeon enthusiasts were out on the Hungjao Road ground and fourteen of them were shooting for the Shanghai championship.

In the morning conditions were not too good. That is why I wrote a few lines above that things were almost perfect. The light was not all that it ought to have been and there was a nasty wind blowing that did not help the shooters. But things improved immensely after luncheon. The light was brilliant and the wind had veered into a more comfortable quarter.

On the whole the shooting was particularly good, especially in the afternoon. Mr. H. H. Read was to the fore from the very start but there was always the element of uncertainty until well into the afternoon, when Gibson missed a couple. However, Read was already two to the good and it was a hundred to one on H. H. to again annex the championship.

His win was a very popular one. It means that he has now collared the handsome cups on six occasions. And he hasn't finished yet. He said in reply to Judge Grain's remarks that he hoped that someone would shortly come to the fore and beat him. He especially mentioned Mr. H. E. Gibson who has been runner-up for many years. With a smile he warned them that he would do his darnedest to win again next year.

In the presence of a goodly crowd, including many of the fair sex, Judge Grain presented the cup to H. H. He complimented the winner upon his numerous successes and wished him future success.

Mr. Ambrose announced that next Sunday's shoot would probably be the last of the season and on behalf of the club he extended an invitation to all the ladies present—and all those who were not present—to be there again on that occasion when prizes would be given to them as well as to the mere males.

Apart of the splendid performance of Mr. Read some fine shooting was also seen by Messrs. H. E. Gibson, J. F. W. Milne and E. H. Himrod. Mr. I. Tuxford was the winner of the handicap prize with a score of 82. His ninth attempt at the ten birds was probably the best performance of the day. He brought down all ten birdies in ten shots. He was closely followed in the handicap by Messrs. Beatty and Algar.

Talking of Mr. Beatty—the Special one—I ought to mention that his hat proved to be a mascot. Many of the shooters refused to bring the gun to the shoulder unless they were wearing this luck-bringing hat. As a matter of fact it looks very much the same as any other hat—perhaps a little older than most but it was in great request. Just twixt ourselves I note that none of the leaders wore the thing. The police seem to be very strong at Clay Pigeon shooting. A few weeks ago the Murray Cup was won by them. The team was Gande, Prince, Milne, and Beatty. The last named sportsman pointed out that the high gun on the other side—Himrod—was also a Special Policeman. So there!

The first four shots were:

Mr. H. H. Read	91
Mr. H. E. Gibson	85
Mr. J. F. W. Milne	84—
Mr. E. H. Himrod	84

Meadowbrook Wins Polo Title In U. S.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Oct. 6.—Meadowbrook today won the American Open Polo Championship by defeating the British Army by 12 goals to 9.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

THE United States Golf Association (the principal governing body in American golf) has announced that after January first all slotted or punched clubs will be barred, and that there must be no markings upon the faces of golf clubs other than stamped lines not exceeding one sixteenth of an inch in width nor not less than three thirtyseconds of an inch apart.

THE "slotted and punched" club has been a bone of contention between American and British golfers ever since the St. Andrews committee barred them in 1920, and the source, unfortunately of considerable ill feeling between certain golfing elements in both countries.

The American professionals who went to England this summer to compete in the British open at Troon hollered their heads off because the British authorities posted a notice, just before the classic was scheduled to start, to the effect that any player using these clubs would be disqualified. The charge was made by some of the American "pros" that this ruling was an eleventh hour subterfuge to prevent the cup emblematic of the British championship from taking a third successive trip across the Atlantic, and since many of the leading visitors were habitual users of these weapons they raised a howl that was heard, like the volleys from the blunderbusses of Lexington's embattled farmers, clear 'round the world.

THE committee of the Royal and Ancient did exactly the right thing, and many well meaning newspapers (including British newspapers) to the contrary notwithstanding the committee did the right thing at the right time.

The ruling against slotted or punched clubs was not invoked at the last minute, as many of the players, both American and British, charged as a matter of fact the ruling was made two years previously, and all the St. Andrews committeemen did doubtless after their attention had been called to the fact that some of the entrants apparently were contemplating the use of such clubs, was to post a notice calling attention to the ruling. The committeemen, by that act, did the players a favor, as many of them would have been disqualified otherwise.

The players, not the committeemen, were at fault, for they either knew about the ruling or should have known about it, particularly after the fuss that was made over Jock Hutchinson's "spade" two years previously—the implement he used so successfully at St. Andrews when he stood the field on its head, and which the committee was accused of having particularly in mind when it put up the much discussed ban.

THE decision of the American governing body will go a long way toward clarifying the international golfing situation, and will undoubtably make for better feeling in both England and America. Slotted and punched clubs, in the hands of experts, are undoubtably a "mechanical aid" in golf and to permit their continued use would be just as silly and unreasonable as permitting the players to use some sort of catapult to achieve their tee shots.

If the two governing bodies, St. Andrews and the U.S. G.A., will now get together and abolish the foolish stymie, thereby making it impossible for a poor player plus atrocious luck in the matter of laying stymies to defeat a player of much greater ability (as frequently happens) golf will mean a test of physical fitness, mentality and muscular skill, as it should be. The tennis associations of England and America met last year and drew up a set of absolutely uniform rules to govern play in both countries, and that lead should be followed by the links lawmakers.

Golfers To Have Tilts With Par Over Weekend

There will be a competition against Par on Saturday and Sunday, October 13th and 14th. 36 Holes. Only One Card can be taken out.

Note—Some members do not understand the terms "competition against par," or "competition against bogey."

A competion against par means that par is a theoretical opponent, with match play conditions. Par for the first hole, for instance, is four, and if the player makes the hole in three he is "one up" on par, regardless of handicap. If he makes it in four, and if his handicap gives him a stroke on that hole he is one up. If he makes it in five and has a stroke on that hole under his handicap allowance he is even with par. If he makes it in six or more he is one down to par, his stroke handicap being of no avail. The same applies to competitions against bogey.

The winner of the competition is the one whose standing is best, with reference to par, when all the cards are in. Thus if one player is three down to par, and the next nearest player is four down, the winner of the competition is the one who is only three down.

DEL MONTE CAFE HAS EXTRA HOUR PROGRAM TONIGHT

Tonight the Del Monte Cafe is to remain open until 3 a.m.—with an augmented program of entertainment. This is the first time that the cafe has taken advantage of the special permission clause in the new Municipal regulations and the reason is that the Del Monte is putting on a show especially for the Navy officers now in port.

In consideration of this special event the popular Del Monte Ballet will give a double program, in addition to the usual entertainment features, and the Del Monte chef has promised an unusually good dinner—though there are many who claim that that's the sort of dinner he provides every night.

The entertainment items begin during the dinner hour and continue throughout the evening and—in this instance—morning—till 3.

This work was completed under the Russell Sage Fellowship for scientific research. After his graduation, Dr. Hsieh became connected successively with the American Bridge Co. of New York City, the Bethleham Steel Bridge Corporation of Steelton, Pa., and with Dr. J. A. L. British Company, S. V. C. Has Its Annual Rifle Meeting

This Unit held its annual rifle meeting on Saturday and Sunday October 6 and 7. Weather conditions were ideal, and altogether an enjoyable time was spent. With the exception of a few absentees on leave or unfortunately sick, practically the whole Company was present Saturday was taken up with a few preliminary practices at short ranges, and the competition for the Ex-Services Men's Cup, and wound up with some Lewis Gun practice.

On Sunday the S.V.C. Staff were with us as the programs included the T. M. C. for efficiency. Tiffin was served shortly after 1. Some fifty members of the Company sat down, Major Stewart and the R. S. M. honored us by staying to tiffin, but owing to the Chinese Co. Camp, we regreted the Commandant could not be with us. However, at the close of the meal, the Commandant, the Adjutant, and Majors Pilcher and Canning gave us a call.

Colonel Gordon complimented the Unit on its recent successes on the range. As they had proved themselves such a fine shooting Unit, he hoped during the coming training season to have the pleasure of seeing them out on field work, and that they would prove themselves as good there.

Co. S. H. Divers, the acting C. O. of the Co. spoke of the fine progress the Co. was making. A few years back the strength stood at 24. Last year we sat down to tiffin 44. This year we were 64 and he hoped by this time next year, we could muster 104. Some fine material was coming in to the Company just now. This was mainly from the B. A. T. staff which was very largely Ex-Service and so good stuff.

The Company resumed work shortly after 2 o'clock. All the events were finished off by 4 o'clock but the majority of the Co. being of the Oliver Twist variety. Pool shooting was carried on until nearly Lights Out. Full results follow.

French Are Angered By Attitude Of Curzon In Reparations Squabble

Press Of Paris Flays British Foreign Secretary Following Outspoken Address To Imperial Economic Parley

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 7.—Commenting on Marquess Curzon's speech the London Sunday Times says that the speech gives neither light nor direction.

The Sunday Pictorial says, "there is one point on which Marquess Curzon has not resisted giving his real thoughts, the German capitulation ought to have taken place three months ago. Then why did he in fact support passive resistance in the Note of August 11? The Government itself cannot affirm, without failing in logic, that passive resistance could have been justified up to a certain moment and have become unlawful by the consequences. Marquess Curzon has no ground for saying that our Government has maintained strict neutrality, for without any doubt his attitude has encouraged Germany's hostility. The dazzling reality, which arises today before the world, is the bond of blood uniting the people of France to Great Britain and in face of that the big, pompous words of prolix politicians are only a poke in the eye."

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 6.—Marquess Curzon's speech has astonished and angered the French press.

The Figaro says that Mr. Baldwin's speech revealed an original thinker and a sincere friend of France, and that Marquess Curzon's speech revealed a man embittered by the failure of his policy. The journal says that the speech does not improve the prospects of a settlement.

The Echo de Paris asserts that the speech will revive all past controversies because it implicitly advises the Germans to hold out.

The Matin declares that Marquess Curzon did not merely differ from the French views but was offensive.

The Gaulois says that the singular speech has brutally thrown oil on the fire.

The Petit Parisien points out that Marquess Curzon's chief anxiety apparently is not to improve the happy effects of Mr. Baldwin's intervention.

The Oeuvre declares that the speech as usual was extremely disagreeable and in some parts frankly hostile.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 6.—The French press this evening gives great prominence to comments on Marquess Curzon's speech. It points out the form of the speech which appears to betray a certain amount of illhumor, and emphasises the retrospective character of the statement in the absence of a constructive plan.

The Liberte considers the speech useless and the Intransigeant expresses the same idea in an ironic manner. The Journal des Debats discuses a particular point in the speech in which Marquess Curzon declared that in his opinion the German capitulation should have taken place three months ago and that it was clumsy to postpone it. The journal points out that at the same time Marquess Curzon in a published document was encouraging German resistance by contesting the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr. There is in that, the journal declares, an evident contradiction. The Journal des Debats concludes by recalling all the value which is attached to British co-operation, which such a speech does not facilitate. The Temps expresses the same thought and retraces, like Marquess Curzon himself, the history of the last year, discussing more particularly the suggestions of Marquess Curzon tending towards the resumption as soon as possible of inter-Allied conversations on the subject of reparations. The Temps writes: "As long as the German Government has not the slightest notion of what its currency reform and the stabilisation of its budget ought to be, as long as resistance has not effectively ceased in all the enterprises and all the services of the occupied territories, on what can the Allies deliberate?"

M. Louis Dubois, the former President of the Reparations Commission, interviewed on the subject of Marquess Curzon's statement, declared that it was contrary to the truth to state that the amount of payment demanded from Germany has not been conscientiously considered. By the terms of the Treaty the Commission alone had the right to fix the debt. As a preliminary the Commission had a study made with German experts of all the claims of the interessed Powers by a specially instituted service. Before making a pronouncement the Commission itself heard the representatives of the German Government, accompanied by 32 experts, in 23 official sittings. The Commission made its decision unanimously. Such was, M. Dubois concluded, the work of which Marquess Curzon appears to have spoken very lightly.

DR. SUN STILL UNSUCCESSFUL IN WAR DRIVE

City Of Waichow Holding Out Against Attacking Forces

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Sept. 28.—Dr. Sun Yat-sen has ordered the Chinese gunboat Yung Fung to Pakhoi to assist the land forces operating there.

General Chen Chung-ming's forces on the East River are still successfully opposing the Constitutionalists and Waichow is still holding out. Dr. Sun will continue personally to direct operation until General Chen's stronghold is taken, and will not return to Canton until order is restored in the district.

The strike of restaurant-keepers, firecracker-dealers and mutton-vendors is continuing as a protest against the special war taxes. The hotel proprietors and building contractors have not yet complied with the orders to pay the special surtaxes or license fees, and may refuse to do so unless the Government makes some modification in the regulations.

Poincare Standing Pat; Defends French Moves In Reparations Battle

France Will Continue To Demand Permanent Guarantees And Total Of Award, Premier Asserts In Speeches

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 7.—M. Poincare delivered two speeches today which were composed some time ago and consequently did not refer to Marquess Curzon's statement.

Speaking at Ligny-en-Barrois, M. Poincare declared that France was not responsible for the German financial crisis. Whoever controlled Germany's destinies tomorrow France would continue to demand permanent guarantees of security and the total of her reparation. France would be ready to listen to definite proposals when she observed on the spot that passive resistance had ceased and that the deliveries due to the Allies were arriving regularly. As it was in Germany's interest that industry in the Ruhr should not be paralysed, she was bound finally to come to a settlement.

M. Poincare did not believe any more than Mr. Baldwin that there was between the British and French points of view an unbridgeable gulf. The French program was unaltered, but it counted for much that friendly frank conversations, such as he had recently had with Mr. Baldwin, should be able to be renewed occasionally to tighten the ties of the Entente. However important the reparation question was, it was not the only question with which Britain and France had to deal in common.

Only recently, by loyal co-operation in the Conference of Ambassadors and the League of Nations the two Allies had contributed to allay conflicts which might have disturbed the peace of Europe.

The Prime Minister hoped with regard to settlement of the compensation for France and liquidation of the inter-Allied debts that good intentions might soon be translated into successful realities. If France did not relax her firmness, she would obtain the satisfaction to which she was entitled.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 7.—M. Poincare, presenting colors to a section of war veterans at Pierefitte-sur-Aire, endeavoured in his speech to give utterance to the appeal of the French ruins. He added that, in spite of France's former friends and Allies who had now gone astray, he would be silent and fold arms only when Germany had effaced in the ten departments the traces of her passage and her crimes.

France would continue the necessary advances for the reconstruction of the devastated regions, but it was a monstrous thing, which humanity would not support, that a nation, formerly attacked, invaded and devastated, should remain condemned to such sacrifices.

Unveiling a war memorial at Ligny-en-Barrois, the Premier expressed the conviction that Germany would continue her attempts to transpose roles and to throw the blame for her own faults on France. Germany had deliberately organised and continued resistance in the Ruhr.

Therefore, whoever might be the directors of Germany France would continue to demand guarantees for security and reparations. She would hear definite proposals when she had obtained proof on the spot of the cessation of resistance and the resumption of regular deliveries in kind. Mr. Poincare hoped that all the Allies would eventually better appreciate France's conduct.

Then English publicists, who hoped for an immediate alteration in French opinion, were greatly deceived. The votes of the French Councils-General showed that a majority in the two Chambers, closely in agreement with the country, approved the Government. Why did not the Allies, in any case, instead of quarreling amongst themselves, try to understand one another? How could certain of the Allies consider the Treaty of Versailles inexecutable when they drafted it themselves?

M. Poincare considered that, reciprocal engagements having been taken, no one could isolate himself from them even though it was only a question of a reduction of Germany's debt.

The occupation of the Ruhr would in no way diminish the payments of the Reich since Germany before the occupation was no longer paying anything. Not having been able to prevent us from exploiting the Ruhr, Germany was interested in coming to a composition. M. Poincare did not believe that there was an irremediable opposition between this point of view and that of the London Cabinet.

He said that he had nothing to change in the French program, explained in the Yellow Book, but it was much that friendly and trustful conversations, such as those recently with Mr. Baldwin, could be renewed, thereby drawing closer the bonds of the Entente. M. Poincare in conclusion hoped that good intentions would soon produce happy realities with regard to the payment of damages and inter-Allied debts.

No nation was more sincerely desirous of this than France. She understood the sufferings of others but she knew her own which were greater. She had at her disposal scarcely sufficient means to raise again the reparable parts of her ruins. She was therefore resolved not to make advances indefinitely on behalf of Germany, and would be able to force the latter herself to carry out her obligations.

The cessation of resistance had placed France in a position to obtain the satisfaction to which she was entitled. France demanded only justice, and was well on her way to obtaining it. She was pursuing her way, endeavouring cordially to convert those who were still incredulous, but the essential, M. Poincare concluded, was to arrive at the goal and France would arrive there.

World and His Wife Attend Singer's Debut at Sea

Mort Downey Has Unique Distinction on U. S. S. Leviathan

The first international debut of an operatic star took place recently when the Leviathan, biggest steamship in the world, made her maiden trip across the Atlantic.

The star who received the impressive introduction to his public was Mort Downey, young Irish tenor, who was discovered and presented by Paul Whiteman, famous orchestra leader.

The role of impresario is a new one for Whiteman, but his friends along Broadway who declare he "innovates" in his sleep were not in the least surprised that he disdained the ordinary way of launching a grand opera find, and chose, instead of the Metropolitan, the magnificent salon of the Leviathan where, during the voyage, notables from every nation gathered.

Whiteman's orchestra furnished the accompaniment for the youthful singer and "Wonderful One", a waltz song, composed by the leader himself and considered by publishers the biggest musical find of 1923, was what he sang.

"It was a greater thrill than I'd have gotten out of even the Metropolitan, though always before, that was the height of my ambition," Downey radioed friends after his opening night at sea.

EMIGRANTS ARE BUT FEW UNDER BRITISH OFFER

Empire Settlement Act Fails To Obtain Expected Results

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 6.—In a speech at the Economic Conference yesterday, Lieutenant-Colonel Albert Buckley, Parliamentary Secretary of the Overseas Trade Department, regretted that the results of the working of the Empire Settlement Act had been disappointing. The number of assisted emigrants up to September 30 was infinitesimal compared with the needs of the movement. The number of emigrants who had gone to Australia totalled 23,479, New Zealand 4,520 and Canada 3,851. Our actual cash commitments under the Act were £305,000 for Australia, £32,000 for Canada, £45,000 for New Zealand, a total of £382,000 against authorisation of £1,500,000 to March 31 last, and £3,000,000 for the current financial year. It was impossible to rely on improvement in 1924. The Conference must consider whether the cause of the meagre results was economic, political or psychological. The fault was not that of the various Governments concerned who had paid very close attention to the problem.

M. Malvy Attacked By Royalist Group

It will be recalled that M. Malvy has just returned to France after five years' exile for dereliction of his duty as a Minister.

Spot bar silver was down 1-4d and forward unchanged in London on Saturday. The New York price declined to 63-⅝ cents and the London New York cross rate to 455-⅛. At the opening our official quotations were unchanged from Saturday but as the market while opening steady became very weak in the course of the day, the official Sterling rate is subsequently dropped to 3-0-½, the Gold Dollar rate to 69-⅛ the Yen rate raised to 71-⅛ and the other rates changed accordingly. In the early part of the morning some business in Sterling was done at 31-1-16 for October delivery, 3-1 for November and 3-0-15-16 for Decebmer. Gold Dollars were done at 70¼ for near and forward deliveries. Later in the day, however, there become strong buyers at these rates and at the close the market was weak with no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-0-¾ for October delivery, 3-0-11-16 November and 3-0-⅝ for December. The best sellers of Gold Dollars were offering 69-¾ for near and forward deliveries. There were sellers of Yen at 70-⅛ for near delivery and 70 for forward. Banks were quoting 3-1-½, 71-¼ and 1215 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively India sold silver in London on Saturday and China bought the market being uncertain at the close. New York report their market as easy.

Ship Steward Considers Hawaii Part Of Japan

Honolulu, T. H.—Alfred Farrell, steward on a Pacific steamer, thought the territory of Hawaii belonged to Japan, he told Federal Judge John T. DeBolt here in explaining how to came to violate the prohibition law.

"I didn't know this was part of the United States," Farrell explained.

"Whom did you think we belonged to, Japan?" Judge Deholt questioned.

"It looked like Japan to me," the prisoner said. He was fined $25 after he assured the court he would sign the pledge and leave Honolulu.

"Back to the United States for me," he said as he paid his fine.

Full Text Of Powers' Second Lincheng Note

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 4.—The Diplomatic Body held a meeting this morning at which the answer to the reply from the Waichaiopu to the Lincheng note was approved. The Dean of the Diplomatic Body handed the note to Dr. Wellington Koo, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, this afternoon. The text of the note is as follows:

The Diplomatic Body have examined with great care your Excellency's note of September 24, regarding the Lincheng incident and were glad to find in it, along with fresh expression of the regret felt in China for that deplorable outrage, a positive declaration that the Chinese Government and people were not actuated by any anti-foregn feeling.

The Diplomatic Body, however, feel bound to recall that in their note of August 10 they did not declare the existence of an anti-foreign movement in China; they declared existence of a situation resulting from the development of brigandage in China threatening with danger the life, liberty, rights and property of foreigners residing in this country. In this regard, the special character of the Lincheng outrage does not appear to have been understood by the Chinese Government, and the Diplomatic Body are obliged on this important point to rectify the statements contained in your Excellency's vote.

Contrary to these statements, it is irrefutably established by the facts themselves, that the Lincheng outrage was directed against foreigners.

The instigators of the Lincheng attack declared on many occasions that their purpose was to capture foreigners and to make use of their foreign nationality in order to bring pressure to bear upon the Legations charged with the protection of the hostages and through these Legations upon the Chinese Government. This purpose the Lincheng bandits succeeded in accomplishing in all its details; they negotiated with the Chinese Government under cover of their foreign hostages whom they did not release until they had gained their object.

Their method was copied from that of the Hunan brigands in 1922; it has been imitated since by the Hupeh brigands who murdered their hostage Father Melotto, and very recently by the Honan brigands who carried off two foreign women to a fate still unknown. Every foreigner may well fear and does fear the same fate. That is the essential character of the Lincheng outrage.

The Diplomatic Body had hoped that following this incident, the Chinese Government would inaugurate vigorous action against the brigands who infest the country. However the measures indicated in your Excellency's note of September 24 last, remain ineffective as it is not enough to give an order to pursue the brigands but above all it is necessary that the brigands be actually pursued. The local authorities do not manifest at this time any zeal in the repression of brigandage which is still rife in most of the provinces of China, while at the same time their best military forces continue to be employed in those civil wars which bring so much suffering and misery to the Chinese people.

Under these conditions, the Diplomatic Body, mindful of the necessity of assuring respect for the life, liberty, rights and property of foreigners in China, and desirous of contributing to the restoration of the rule of law and order in this great country, find themselves compelled to maintain in their entirety the considerations and conclusions of their collective note of August 10 last. They, therefore, call upon the Chinese Government to execute the measures indicated in their above mentioned note.

Waikiki Beach To Be Real Bathing Place

Honolulu, T. H.—Honolulu is to have a real beach at Waikiki at last, according to present plans of the city administration.

The present beach, made famous in song, proves to be a disappointment to most visitors to the islands, because, while it is considered the finest in the world for surf-boarding or surf-canoeing, it is not especially suited for bathing, owing to the coral reefs in shallow water and the fact that there is very little sand.

The proposed beach, planned specifically for bathing, will be placed on the new Waikiki canal with a sandy slope graded down to the water's edge from a boulevard. The beach will be a mile and a half long.

The Shanghai Portland Cement Works
LIMITED, SHANGHAI
"The perfection of art can only be attained by first perfecting the instruments therefor."—Sayings of Confucius.

EXTRACT FROM EXPERT REPORT:

"Having visited most of the cement factories of Great Britain, America and Europe, I am in a position to form an opinion of the relative merits and faults of each.....but my experiences lead me to the conclusion that 'pride of place' must unquestionably be given to the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland .....in design and construction it is a model without rival in any country." W. H. Brown, A. M. I. Mech. E., leading authority in England on cement manufacturing.

The Wisdom of the ancient Sage and the technical experiences of a modern authority on cement manufacturing have guided us to instal a set of machinery in our Lungwha Works which is an exact model of the one used by the Holderbank factory, Switzerland, and supplied by the original patentees with numerous latest improvements. The cement we are now supplying our customers is the product of that "perfect instrument."

WEATHER

Fine and cool weather. Strong Nly to N-Ely winds over the Yellow and the Eastern Seas —Very rough weather around the Meiaco-Simas and to the South of the Loochoos because of the Pacific Ocean typhoon advancing N-Wly or N-N-W ward.

War Preparations And Poverty

IT is estimated that, if the world could abolish war and preparations for war and devote the same amount of money that is now wasted in those objects, in fifty years the national debts could be paid off and an endowment established that would banish poverty and destitution from the world. So great are the possibilities of production that the stoppage of waste alone together with the maintenance of industry would insure this result without a dollar of extra investment.

When one observes the grinding poverty and destitution of Europe and the hopeless burden of debt under which the countries labor with little or no prospect of release the attractiveness of the idea is made plain. The sentiment favorable to peace must be built up among the rank and file of the producers of the nations. They will cultivate such a sentiment when it is made clear to them that it is they who are called upon to pay the bills of war. They pay not alone in actual taxes but in the indefinite postponement of the time when poverty can be abolished. They can look back over past history and realise that the condition of the wealth producers is lowered by at least the total cost of all these gigantic wastes.

Is this not a program worthy of the labors of every statesman? Could he find any other object for the exercise of his talents that would begin to produce so large a yield of benefit? This idea is commended to the earnest consideration of those statesmen who pretend to have an absorbing interest in the welfare of the people. Investments are not destroyed. They merely pass from hand to hand. They do not disappear except through the operations of waste.

Interest Rates On Savings

ONE of the leading banks of San Francisco is advertising an increase of its dividend rate to time depositors from 4 percent to 4¼ percent per annum. In times when idle funds accumulate and there is a slackening demand for money owing to inactive business, money will earn less and interest rates tend to go down. At other times, when business is good and there is an active demand for money, there is a tendency for interest rates to go up. Banks offer better rates in order to tempt money to come out of its places of hiding and go to work.

In order to be normal and healthy interest rates should not be subject to violent fluctuations because there are more or less strictly limited opportunities for depositors to gain exaggerated returns on their money, and if there were such chances it would indicate an unhealthy condition of business. But an upgrade improvement, showing signs of permanency, in the earnings of banks is a good omen of prosperous times. The same general principles of the law of demand and supply govern the use of money as they do commodities in the market. When demand is active and the buyers are plentiful prices will stiffen. When buyers are few and goods are overstocked prices will sag.

Sometimes people get the idea that in bad times for business money is scarce and rates are high. But the volume of primary money does not fluctuate greatly, except by the operations in foreign exchange, the payment of foreign debts and the making of foreign investments. Otherwise the money stays in its own country whether it be actively employed or not. When not employed it accumulates in the reservoirs of capital, and while thus idle it cannot earn dividends for its owners. When banks are filled up with idle money their earnings are reduced. They cannot pay good dividends.

It may therefore be said, in general, that an increase in the dividend rate is indicative of good business all around. It means that business is active and the demand for money is good. Increasing the dividend rate will cause investment money to flow in and so increase the possibility of doing more business. The same water will fall upon different paddles of the wheel and one transaction will help out another. The profitable use of money is an indication of real prosperity rather than its mere presence in the banks. The enterprising bank will increase its loans in the same ratio that its deposits grow greater.

THE CHINESE AND JAPAN

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir.—To hear our Chinese friends vilifying their insular neighbours and complaining over the arrogance of latter and their sharp practices, was what we have become accustomed to hear daily. Perhaps the grudge against the Sons of Nippon is not altogether unfounded and even natural. Instead the Chinese may well take the Japanese as an example rather than as an object of abuse. Japan has attained within the last half century such marvelous advancement and it was by persistent and systematical endeavor that she arrived at her goal in becoming one of the Great World Powers. Without sacrifice of national peculiarities western standards were adapted to increase her economical and political power, and herein lies the secret of Japanese success.

China has a population seven times greater than that of Japan, but her lack of system in converting western advancement into a real factor for her national advantage has been the main cause why she has not been able to keep pace with other highly developed countries.

Foreigners often smile when the sons of our old friends Messrs. Li, Wei, Yang and Liu (spelling according to Wade's), blossom forth as Washington Lee, Laurence Way, Archibald Young, and Percival Lew. After all the name marks the individual and should be the index of one's nationality, so why disguise it? As far as I know no reputable Japanese would consider it a sign of progress or evolution to adopt a foreign name, but they rather pride themselves to be known by their real names exclusively. For the Chinese student abroad foreign Christian names may be a convenience for use among classmates and friends, but their use on official documents seems out of place. They should just be considered as nick-names and nothing else.

Although twelve years have elapsed since China decided on a new form of government, conditions in the country are today more chaotic than ever. With twenty-two and more minor potentates dominating in the country, and civil war raging, what can otherwise be expected? With neither leadership nor inspiration on the part of a real government, progress is bound to be slow if not impossible. Salvation for the country can only be expected after a stable government is established, and when improvements can be carried out systematically.

Individually Chinese have proved themselves in the recent calamity in Japan not in the least behind other nations. In good Samaritan spirit they wholeheartedly came to the aid of the Japanese and rendered such first aid as Western countries could not so suitably have done. In an emergency the Chinese have proved that they are capable of great deeds. Westerners may have overlooked what Chinese did to help when help was needed, but the Japanese know that China's contribution was not to be dispised. This is only a timely example to show that China is quite capable of organisation, and with a systematical organisation on all lines her proper place in the brotherhood of nations is bound to be accorded her in time.

Thanking you for the space. I am, dear Sir,

Yours very truly,
H. KLIENE.

If Germany Should "Collapse"

BY SIR SIDNEY LOW

We hear a good deal just now about the possible "collapse" of Germany. Nervous politicians and financiers in this country hint at it apprehensively. In Germany itself the newspapers, now mostly under the ownership of the great Markocracy, talk about it with cheerful candour. It, they say, the French and other Allies go on squeezing us for reparations we shall just throw up the sponge. We will relapse into political and social confusion, pay nothing, and produce nothing, and turn Central Europe into pauperised and famine-stricken chaos.

It sounds formidable, and has apparently frightened some influential persons here, especially if they happen to be interested in German trade and banking. But I do not quite see why it should make the rest of us shake in our shoes.

I cannot help remembering that we were favored with similar threats when the Versailles Treaty was being framed. We mustn't press Germany too hard, it was said, or Germany will have a revolution a la Russe.

The Germans took up the tune with a fine zest. "Treat us gently and kindly," they exclaimed, "or we will go Bolshevik."

The French laughed. "Let them go Bolshevik, if they please, but they won't." And, of course, they did not. Even to spite the Allies they were not going to turn they prosperous country into a devil-ridden wilderness like Red Russia. The genuine revolutionary Communists, who worked for that result, were firmly suppressed. The majority of Germans are too sensible and practical to imitate the Hindu debtor who commits suicide by slow starvation on his creditor's doorstep.

STAGE-MANAGED "COLLAPSE"

So I do not think the Germans will engineer a genuine industrial collapse, though it may suit them to stage-manage a dramatic representation of one. It is quite likely that they may be in for serious political trouble. The Government has no real weight of public opinion behind it, and there may come a fierce struggle for power between the financial and agricultural monopolists and the Socialist trade unions. There may be rioting, disorder, perhaps a sort of civil war in some districts. But there will be no general stoppage of trade and production, which is, I suppose, what is meant by economic collapse.

If that happened it might, or might not, be embarrassing to the rest of Europe and the outside world; but to the Germans themselves it would mean impoverishment, ruin, appalling suffering. It is not a prospect that can tempt them.

At present Germany is, on the whole, a comfortable country. There is much distress among the professional classes and the small investors; but the financiers and manufacturers have made fortunes, the landowners and farmare doing extremely well, and the working classes are better off than they were before the war. There is abundant capital available for vast enterprises, labor is fully employed, and a merely nominal tax is levied on beer, tobacco, and the other common luxuries.

Despite the confusion caused by the monstrous currency juggle, people seem to be enjoying themselves and taking life quite easily and pleasantly. The holidays are in full swing, and all the pleasure resorts, hotels, restaurants, and similar places are crowded and doing a thriving business. There is no "slump" in the German amusement market, even in the occupied districts. One can hardly suppose that the Germans will be willing to exchange these satisfactory conditions for the misery which a real collapse would inflict upon them.

If however, the collapse did come, either by voluntary effort or from other causes, I do not see that we need be excessively alarmed over it. As a commercial and manufacturing nation we do not want to see any market closed; we would like to have them all open, eager to take our wares and able to pay for them.

GERMANY POOR CUSTOMER

There are people, some of them in high places, who talk as if trade with Germany were the mainspring of our commercial machinery, the dominating factor in our international business. Get Germany stable and prosperous, they suggest, and we shall have no more unemployment.

It is a curious delusion, as inexplicable as that other myth about Russia. The total of our exports would show only a relatively insignificant decrease if we never sent another ton of goods to Germany. In 1920 our general exports were worth in round figures 1,550 million pounds. To this sum our sales to Germany contributed £51,000,000—one-thirtieth of the total!

Is that fraction so overwhelmly important? We sold 183 million to India, 175 millions to France, 131 millions to the United States, 68 millions each to Belgium and Australia, and 48 millions to Canada. Even in prewar days, in 1913, our exports to Germany were only worth about £60,000,000—say, 25s. per annum for every member of our population. The loss of that sum annually would not plunge us all into ruin, nor if it were doubled would it flood us with renewed prosperity or set all our unemployed at work again.

If Germany should unhappily think proper to "collapse" we should lose our seventh best customer. But then we should also lose our most dangerous competitor. Germany, with the money she has not paid for reparations, has developed her industrial plant and improved her communications. She has conserved her capital resources while ours have been drained away to pay the interest on our debts and comply with the demands of the tax-collector.

The German manufacturers and shippers, lightly taxed and equipped to the highest standard of modern efficiency, are invading all the markets of the world, and can dump their commodities in them at prices we cannot challenge. Presently we shall have to fight for our economic life almost everywhere. A collapse which checked or postponed this bitter struggle would not leave us quite inconsolable.

I thing the Germans understand this far too well to indulge in any really effective collapsing. If they did we should have our compensations and could watch the process without undue anxiety.

LIFE AS IT IS

BY THOMAS L. MASSON

A STORY WITH A POSSIBLE MORAL

It is a rule in big banks for clerks to move up in the line of promotion rather than to get outsiders to fill positions. A friend of mine was assistant teller. The teller died; and by all the rules the assistant should have been moved up. But the president ignored this precedent and appointed a relative.

My friend was married and had a baby. He had no resources but his salary, which was $35 a week. He went home and told his wife what had happened. He was afraid to lose his job, but they both got mad at the injustice so he determined that he would not submit. The next day he went to the president and asked him why. The president smiled and said: "What are you going to do about it?"

"I am going to get out."

My friend resigned, went to another bank and told his story. They listened to him carefully; told him to come back and through inside sources verified his story. When he came back they said:

"We have no position really open, but in the circumstances if you are willing to accept $30 a week we will take you on." He accepted.

Some months later one of their old depositors, a bachelor with a fortune, wished to occupy his time with a brokerage business. He wanted a young, reliable partner. He applied to the bank. They told him the story of my friend, who had nerve enough to get out because he wouldn't submit to an injustice. The bachelor made him a partner. That was two years or more ago. My friend tells me that he is now enjoying an income of $8000 a year and is a partner in a going concern.

While this is a true story, just as I have told it, it should be considered carefully and not taken altogether as a guide. I may say that the president of the bank who committed the injustice of putting in his relative was deposed from his position shortly after.

But he might have been justified in what he did. My friend might have been wrong. I suppose the great point of this whole matter, however, is this: Never hesitate to do what you believe to be right, no matter what happens. In other words, don't be scared by anything.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Living In A Hollow Sphere

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I have read an interesting piece of fiction in which the participants were forced into a crater within the moon. Assuming such a world possible, where would the center of gravity be if the moon were hollow, and what would correspond to the horizon on the earth? If water were inside could rain be produced by evaporation due to heat and not to the sun's rays? A Reader, Chicago."

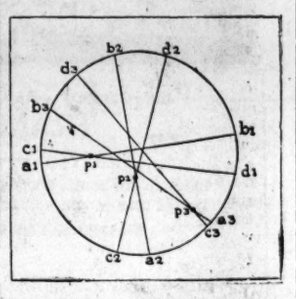
It would be difficult to imagine a more interesting place to live—for a while—than the inside of a hollow spherical planet, if the substance of the planet's shell was homogeneous throughout, and the shell everywhere of equal thickness. I suppose your fiction writer assumed that. In order to see what the conditions would be, let us indulge, under the leadership of Sir Isaac Newton, in a little geometrical play, it is really great sport—much better than you perhaps suppose—and quite easy, too. And Newton's "Principia" is one of the world's greatest storehouses of undeveloped romance.

Now, in the first place, there would be no center of gravity in the sense in which we commonly speak of; that is to say as a point toward which everything is drawn or tends to fall. As soon as you got inside the shell of the hollow planet your weight would disappear like magic. As long as you were on the surface of the shell, or anywhere outside of it, you would be drawn toward its center, viz., the center of the sphere of which the shell was the superficial boundary. But inside you would be drawn no way in particular, but all ways at once, so that there would be a balance of attractions acting upon you from all sides. Therefore, you would neither weigh anything nor tend to move or fall in any direction. You would not be held rigidly fast, however, as if steel wires were binding you; you would simply be without tendency to move, though if you could get a purchase, or an impulse, you could set yourself in motion in any direction that you might choose.



Now, let us see how Newton proved this paradoxical fact. We draw a circle to represent the planetary shell. The gravitation force of all the matter contained in the shell, when exercised upon any body outside of it on its surface, is focussed toward the center. But when the body is placed inside, see what a curious thing happens. We put the body successively at three different points, chosen at random; any other points inside the sphere would do as well. We mark them P1, P2 and P3.

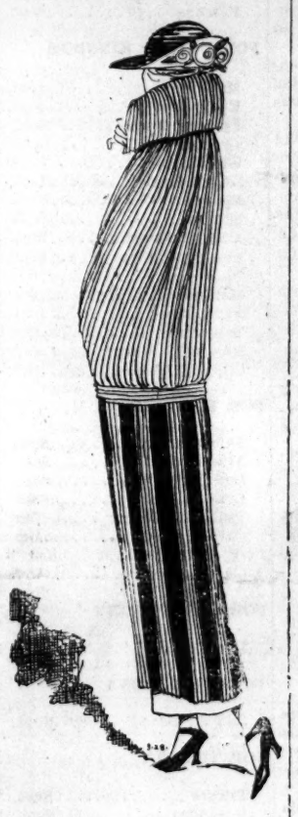
Then we draw straight lines, "a1-b1, c1-d1," etc., through each point, each pair of lines intercepting acts of the circumference on opposite sides of the circle. Now, let us consider the point "P1." By geometrical principles the arcs "a1-c1 and b1-d1" are proportional to the lengths of the lines "a1-P1" and "P1-d1" and the areas of the intercepted portions of the shell, whose linear dimensions are "a1-c1" and "b1-d1," are proportional to the squares of the same lines. But, by the law of gravitation, the attractive force is inversely as the square of the distance, i. e., the squares of the lines, so that the body at "P" is drawn just as much by the small area represented by "a1-c1 as it is by the larger but more distant area, represented by "b1-d1."

The same reasoning applies to the other points, "P2" and "P3," and would apply to any point whatever inside the sphere where the body might be placed.

So, as soon as you got inside the sphere you would, so to speak, be afloat in a sea of gravity. There would be no up or down for you except as you remembered that toward the nearest point of the shell was the direction that would be up if you were on the outer surface. Innumerable strange, seemingly incredible experiences would be waiting for you, but I have not space to describe them here. You can work some of them out for yourself. Of course, with sufficient heat, water would evaporate in the absence of sunlight. If you were on, or close to the inner surface of the shell your horizon would be a circle where, owing to increase of distance and atmospheric effects—for there could be air inside—the shell ceased to be clearly visible.

What Women Wear

Coats and capes have been playing a game of hide and seek for three years. This is good for trade. Maybe it amuses the public. At least it catches its pennies, for women who cannot decide between the two garments buy both. They have not shown any eagerness to discard a coat for a wrap or the other way round, for they had a shrewd realisation that both garments would find their place in the wardrobe. So they have. And every women needs more than one covering.



Here's one of the new Autumn Capes of Brown Crepe de Chine finely pleated over the whole surface. Narrow panels of brown velvet ribbon stripe the lower section, and the girdle fits the figure.

Last autumn every woman wanted a coat. If it were akin to a frock, so much the better. It was cannily and thriftily made to serve as a gown on mid-season days, and was worn under a fur coat during the winter as if it never inended to be a wrap. There were topcoats of crepe de chine, or kasha, of imitation fur fabrics, all of which were draped and decorated and made to resemble something they were not.

Well, the designers seem to have had their fill of these trick coats, for they decided upon capes. This is well, for this garment goes contentedly with mild weather.

The shape of the new cape is akin to a coat. It appears the designers have not gotten far afield from the original model which imitated a frock. There are sport capes that flare downward from the shoulders with long sashes through which the arms emerge, and of collars of fur there are many.

Some of these are worn on the street, for there are women who decline to draw a line of demarcation between town and country clothes. Possibly they have the weather as their excuse, or the lack of a motor car. They argue that one does not parade through wet streets in formal capes that look like afternoon frocks without a sense of not knowing how to dress.

Opposed to the sport cape there is the elaborate cape, of which the sketch is a good example. It is of brown crepe that gives service and stand hardship. The entire surface is corded with itself. This is a type of decoration that will dominate the autumn season. It appears on hats, wraps, frocks and blouses. Corcing, bias bands and pipings are liberally sprinkled over a plain foundation. As cording gives a good deal of character, women like a decoration of it.

The lower section of this cape is made to appear quite different from the top by vertical bands of brown velvet. These give the Egyptian effect and strengthen the resemblance between the cape and a new autumn frock. There are many ways to fool the public, you know.

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

THE COWPATH

Years ago I read a poem about a cow or a calf. It really doesn't make much difference which it was; a calf becomes a cow so quickly.

This poem told about a farmer who led his cow to pasture in the morning and brought her back at night. The cow, choosing her own way, gradually wore a path across the fields. When the neighboring farmers wanted to cross those fields they found no path excepting the faint one which the cow had made.

Of course, this path became more and more clearly defined. It finally became a lane. And, after that, a road. And when, gradually, the neighborhood became built up, this path became the Main Street.

As the town grew into a big city, thousands and thousands of people walked up and down this main artery of traffic every day in the wake of the old cow.

I wish I knew the name of the author of this poem, because he ought to get a lot of credit.

How many of us, in our thoughts and our beliefs, follow a mental cow? That is to say, how many of us think along certain lines merely because we are accustomed to them, and how many of us make up our minds for ourselves?

We all have religious beliefs and political views. How many people are Methodists or Baptists or Episcopalians or Catholics or Jews or Mohammedans because they have studied all these religions and sects, have thought about them carefully and have selected the one that most appealed to them? And how many belong to a church merely because their parents belonged to it or because they were brought up in that belief since childhood?

It is the same with political views. Of course these change more readily because they are affected by one's bank account. But, in the main, is it not true that most men are Democrats or Republicans because they were born in a certain locality or because their fathers cherished certain beliefs?

It takes a long time for a new idea, a new truth, to find lodgment in the human brain. Some there are constantly searching for wisdom and knowledge. But these are the exceptions. To the great bulk of humanity, you will find, plods along in the wake of some cow.

How fortunately it is for all of us that cows are such gentle, sensible creatures.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician knowing of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home." WM. J. MCCRANN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the maker alone knows what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine." N. B. SIZER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Chinese Press Here Is Unit In Condemnation Of Election At Peking

The local Chinese press was unanimous in its condemnation Saturday of the presidential election in North China, contending that the election was invalid on account of the payment of checks for $5,000 each to the Parliamentarians who voted in favor of Tsao, incidently, the leading dailies also published Saturday the facsimile reproductions of one of the checks actually tendered by the campaigners to one of the Parliamentarians.

Tsao Kun's act in ousting Li Yuan-hung from the presidency by force on June 13 and his responsibility in the Lincheng outrage, the press contends, disqualify him for the presidency. The opinion of the four leading dailies here follows:

THE SHUN PAO

"The conclusion of the presidential election through bribery spells defeat for Tsao Kun. We have always maintained that the strongest anti-Chihli advocates were Wu Ching-lien, speaker of the House and Wang Cheng-ping, governor of Chihli. For it is they who had ruined Tsao's name and distributed his money and placed him in a hell of fire.

"Any person with any common sense would have refused to tolerate this, yet the recepient of all this abuse considers it a great accomplishment and is going to reward those who participated in it. He is really a moth finding its own death without knowing the evil effect of the candle.

"In saying this, we are aware of the results of this election carried through by the efforts of the two men, which will include the squabble within the Chihli party for personal gains after the apparent victory, the opposition from without, the financial stringency which is an insoluble question and brigandage, against which foreign powers are protesting. How are the Peking, Tientsin and Paoting gangs going to eliminate them. Who will be able to shoulder these responsibilities

"He who is the victorious Chihli leader of today will be the helpless figure-head of tomorrow.

"However, the defeat of Tsao Kun is certain. What we grieve most is the loss of national prestige, life and property, sovereignty and valuable time caused by the supreme sacrifice of warfare."

SIN WAN PAO

"The ambition of Tsao Kun to grab the presidency is now realised. Oh Money! You are almighty! But you are criminal! The reproduction of the checks handed to Parliamentarians for favoring his election appears today in the local press at the same time when his election is accorded in Shanghai. We wonder how they impress those who have been circulating telegrams to oppose his election through bribery.

"The attack against Tsao is made originally in Shanghai, because the parliamentarians who first left Peking for Shanghai apparently had all the gesture and intention to refrain from accepting bribery and be straightforward. But time indicated that they would journey back upon the sight of gold, and help in the election.

"Will those who campaign against the corruption stand firm in the face of private gains as well as open threats? If they knew the principle that genuine public opinion will eventually conquer, then a serious conflict would ensue.

"The general populace is already panic-stricken upon the receipt of the bad news. The so-called Chekiang-Kiangsu and Chekiang-Anhui peace pacts are liable to be destroyed as "scraps of paper" and adverse effects will be had in trade, for which Shanghai exists. We have no time to worry about the mandarins, militarists and parasites, but how about the sufferance that we common folks will have to undergo?"

THE SHANGHAI TRIBUNE

"Yesterday, a quorum was actually secured for the election by means of bribery. Tsao Kun was actually elected. For the last year, Tsao Kun and his proteges have been reported to have resorted to various forms of illegal process, including the purchase of tickets for the election. But not until today are they found to be guilty of the charges. The verdict can now be handed down with concrete evidence.

"The conduct and educational qualifications of Tsao Kun are not sufficient to make him a clerk in an ordinary official bureau not to say the presidency. Today, he may consider himself lucky for having succeeded in seating himself in the presidential chair through bribery, but what will follow his act concerns us more than the election itself.

"1. After ousting Li Yuan-hung on June 13, the general public has openly declared that Tsao Kun has forfeited his right to be a candidate for the presidency. Today's success is due to his effort in buying over the M. P.'s with money, or in other words, due to his being the master of a horde of unthoughtful slaves. It simply proves that the charge against Tsao Kun for electing himself by means of bribery has been conclusively proved. How can the people recognise a criminal as the president?

"2! The various interests who champion justice have openly condemned Tsao's corruptive scheme. His election will merely mean the consolidation of his opponents, who will conduct a campaign against him by force of arms. In other words, those provinces which are opposed to his election through illegal process will soon demonstrate their opposition in a definite way.

"3. The Lincheng affair which was committed under his jurisdiction is yet unsettled. The press has been holding Tsao Kun as the highest authority who is responsible for the outrage. Can we recognise an arch-criminal as our president?

"Therefore no matter how successful Tsao may appear in climbing into the presidential chair, his future is doomed.

"In a word, we believe that the success of Tsao Kun in the election is immaterial to the nation except that it will increase the degree of chaos in the country and cause an early outbreak of warfare. Today, we must call the nation and the anti-Chihlilites to arms to maintain the democracy and deal with Tsao Kun's crime of bribery in accordance with the full rigidity of the law."

THE EASTERN TIMES

"Yesterday marked the successful termination of the efforts of the Chihli Party in electing its leader president by bribery, Tsao Kun must now be pleased with the results inasmuch as his dream has finally come true. We can imagine his delight in being elected.

"A president is honorable when and only when he is elected in accordance with law and supported by the nation as a whole. How about Tsao Kun? Aside from his responsibility in the Lincheng outrage and in the ousting of Li Yuan-hung from Peking, both of which are sufficient to disquality him, he has been guilty of bribery, the evidence of which is reproduced in another column, which is a check for $5,000 made public by Mr. Shao jui-peng, M. P. His crimes having been exposed conclusively and definitely, there is no ground for us to recognise him. If we read the various manifestoes issued in opposition to the scandal in Parliament, we soon know exactly the trend of thought of the people.

"When Yuan Shih-k'ai was opposed by the people in his monarchical movement, he had to take his defeat. The prestige and power of Tsao are far less than Yuan. Yet he dares to be unscrupulous. We are sure before long he will be sorry that he ever thought of the honor of being the nation's chief executive and will find it too late to be content to get back his former title of Paoting Warlord.

"Therefore the election, though it may be regarded by the Chihli party as a victory, is the beginning of the end of Tsao Kun. The act merely spells the loss of further prestige of the nation, which is again entering into a period of darkness."
